Life Sciences a "MUST ATTEND" Event...

ECCB10 will serve as the 9th Annual European Conference on Computational Biology . It is one of the largest and most important computational biology events globally in 2010. Part of the ECCB conference series, it will be organized this year jointly by the Belgian and Dutch bioinformatics communities.

This Life Sciences event offers a multidisciplinary forum to broadcast the latest developments and improvements in Biology and Bioinformatics. ECCB10 will offer a strong scientific program to international scientists from the fields of computer science, molecular biology, molecular medicine, mathematics and statistics.

This ECCB10 Event is a significant opportunity for you and your organization to build visibility and collaborate with the leaders in the fast changing fields from all over the world. It will provide unique moments to showcase your tools, technologies, products and services to researchers , academics and industry.

We look forward to welcome you all.

The Organizing Committee ECCB10

ECCB10 September 26-29 Ghent BELGIUM @ICC

ECCB10 will be held in Ghent, one of Europe's most exciting medieval towns, a glorious eclectic city with spectacular buildings and a vivid cultural experience. Ghent is directly accessible by train from Brussels airport.

The conference venue is highly convenient and located in a beautiful park within the city center.

The exhibitors and sponsors area guarantee an excellent flow of participants' circulation.

The booths are along the coffee break area and are directly in front of the main auditorium

To view the full floor plan of the ICC Ghent, with indication of the booths that can be reserved click on the image.

Why you should sponsor

This year our goal is again to offer cutting edge research updates in the bioinformatics and attract over 600 attendees.

The majority of our congress budget will be spent on: logistic venue, travel & lodging of our key note speakers, poster awards, catering and partially the social event.

Therefore we appreciate all financial and in-kind support.
